

The St. Edward's University softball team is coming off its 2007 signature year in which it recorded 43 wins and 37 homeruns. The Hilltoppers finished first in the Heartland Conference and advanced to the NCAA Division II Regional Tournament for the second straight year. The team was also ranked nationally for the first time in school history — reaching as high as 14th place. Now you can experience this same high standard of excellence in a week of top-notch softball instruction.

Camp Director: Amy Coulter

Amy Coulter joined St. Edward's as assistant coach in 2001 and was named softball head coach one year later. In 2006, she led St. Edward's to the school's first-ever Heartland Conference championship, as well as an NCAA regional tournament appearance. In 2007, the team again advanced to the NCAA regional tournament and finished the season with a 43-18 record.

As a player, Coulter played third base for UT-Arlington for one year, where she was named the UTA Maverick newcomer of the year. After transferring to Texas A&M University, Coulter played left field and was a designated hitter for the Aggies.
